What the Frick report is to say of the $100,000 salary paid to Mr. Hyde as Vice-President of the Equitable and the $22,500 salary paid to him as salary in the Mercantile and the Equitable Trust companies, both controlled by the Equitable life, is a matter of great curiority.

Trust companies, both controlled tyths Equitable life, is a matter of great curiority.

Melville E. Ingalis, stated to head the company, was born in Harrison, Me., Sept. 6, 1842, and is now in his sixty-third year.

His Inheritance was the poverty and hard work of a poor man's son on a stony New England farm. His first carmings were if it per month as a country school teacher, which he saved in order to buy books and go to Burlington Academy. Later he managed to get to Boston, where he entered Harvard Law School, sleeping at night in the office of a friendly lawyer and eating in cheap restaurants.

Mr. Ingalis began his law practice in the little town of Gray, Me, but later moved to Boston, where he achieved success, and was considered a rising young lawyer. He dabled in politics, and went to the State Senate for one term. Ever since politics has been a fascination, but nothing more för him.

Went into Railroads.

Went into Railroads.

Like Chauncey M. Depew, Mr. Ingalls stepped from his law office into the presidency of a railroad bone of us Boston clients were stocknolders in the Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Lafayette Railway, which became bankrup. They sent Mr. Ingalls to Cincinnati as receiver, and he made such a success that upon reorganization of the property he was elected President. That small road became later part of the Big Four system, of which Mr. Ingalls was President for many years.

Last January he retired from active management and took the position of Chairman of the Board of Directors. Like Mr. Depew, he is a representative of the Vanderbilt family, which controls the Big Four.

In politics Mr. Ingalls is a sound-money Democrat. He was Democratic candidate for Mayor of Cincinnati in 1902, but was defeated. That was his first direct participation in politics since his Boston days. Had he been successful there was talk of making him Governor of Ohio and then Democratic candidate for President. In speeches he has favored franchise and income taxes. In business life he has always been approachable and courteous to all. On his office door for many years was the sign, "Don't knock; come in."

His greatest coup as railway president was the formation of the Joint Traffic Association, in which most of the United States broke up this pool by a decision.

Mr. Ingalls has four grown sons and one daughter. He has acquired much decision.

Remarkable Sale of High Class Mission Furniture

A. A. Vantine's Entire Fifth Avenue Stock

At About 60c. on the Dollar.

The letter tells the story in a nutshell. A. A. Vantine & Company, Broadway, N. Y., recently extended their business by the opening of a Furniture Annex on Fifth avenue, Manhattan. They stocked this store with a well selected assortment of Mission Furniture. Before they had placed all this magnificent stock on display the firm decided that the department was not in line with their policy of exclusive devotion to Oriental furnishings, concluded to abandon the venture and selected Abraham and Straus as the medium for the quick disposal of their entire holdings in this new Mission Furniture. We promptly purchased the entire stock at a concession that permits us to sell it

At About 60c. on the Dollar.

It is not altogether unusual to purchase a surplus stock of accumulated odds and ends of an old business, but to purchase a stock of the highest grade of Furniture in the very newest shapes and finishes that has been on sale but a few weeks and offer it at such a sacrifice may well be termed extraordinary.

The maker is Gustav Stickley, the originator of the mission type, and we will sell it at much lower prices than he catalogues it. It consists of Library, Bedroom, Dining-Room, Hall and Den effects-mostly in new color tones of fumed oak, and some bedroom effects in silver gray maple. Sale begins at 8.30 A. M. sharp.
